Special Summer Opportunity for High School Students

Dear AU Alumni,

I'd like to introduce American University's Community of Scholars, a nonresidential summer program offering specially designed three-credit college courses to outstanding high school students. Study with an SIS professor in a personalized, stimulating, and challenging educational environment. Earn college credit through coursework in U.S. foreign policy, international peace and conflict resolution, and global environmental politics. College credit from American University will add value to college applications and résumés and may be transferable to other accredited colleges and universities.
